

BENNINGTON COLLEGE

Bennington College provides multiple opportunities for safety training to maximize the health, safety, and well-being of all those employed by the College. We understand your time is valuable and we therefore seek to provide training in the most effective and efficient manner possible. By utilization of both classroom and computer-based training (CBT), together we can realize a reduction in workplace injuries and change the habits and behaviors that may result in workplace accidents. Each supervisor should review the topic list below with employees to determine which trainings are applicable, and plan to attend the scheduled classes or complete the CBT through the links provided. Unless otherwise noted, all classroom trainings will be held in the Tishman Lecture Hall on the dates listed below.

Classroom training will be provided throughout the year by College personnel and representatives from our Workers Compensation carriers. The computer-based trainings listed below are provided on the first day of employment for all employees whose jobs responsibilities may require that they are trained on these topics. The College provides quarterly classroom training (see above) with additional detail specific to Bennington College practices. Employees should direct any questions to their supervisor or human resources at hroffice@bennington.edu.
